Why are not you asleep yet Mom?

Do not wait. Do not. Forget about your anxiety.

I've already not fourteen, Mom!

Me more. I'm older.

I know, since you brought up

And even I know your answer,

"Children are always for mom kids

Though thirty them, though forty-five. "

Yet my mother, is not needed

Your strict control and supervision!

Mother, you believe the main thing, my mother.

Because you raised me well,

Believe me, please, Mom, believe.

And if I have trouble meeting,

I will definitely come.

But dear, dear, dear mother

Do not need the strict control.

I'll get in touch with the company,

Do not get married for the first one I meet.

No need to worry so much, Mom. Do not.

After all, you raised me well.

You always said, "You have to be brave."

And if at times will do wrong

Then the next time I will smarter.

Mom, give me your hand to kiss

Most kind in the whole world.

And you do not sit for knitting stubbornly

Waiting when I come.

I've already not fourteen.

Look at me, and understand.

Please do not be sad, my dear, do not be afraid

I'll be back. Sleep tight, I'll be back.

I agree with you that we are always kids for our mothers. I am sure you're doing the right thing writing poems!
