My Great-Grandfather Could Have Left Me Medals...

In a simple overcoat without any signs, Over the fields, meawdows, days and nights, My great-grandfather's blood was spilled. Near Kursk he was killed.

The Arc... It was the most terrible fight! The black sky...And there was no light... And there in Castorensky poligon Many Russian soldiers were gone.

The ground there was spilled by blood. The shells have been still finding in mud. How terribly we live with such pain To whome we never will see again!

July and Augast, every morning The earth under the tanks was moaning. Live in our memory, my great-grandfather There will be no such a Hero another!

And though no medals were left of yours You'll live among all of us because You gave your life for us whome knew you never Let burn the fire of immortality forever!
