Beauty, that nature gives us,
Defended the soldiers in the fire.
A May day in the forty-fifth year
Became the last point in the war.
For all, that we have now,
For each happy minute and hour,
For the sun that shines for us
Thank you, brave soldiers.
Our grandfathers and fathers,
No wonder, salute sounds
In honor of the Victory.
All around was quiet,
And suddenly - salute! Salute!
The missiles flashed in the sky -
And there, and here!
Over the square,
Over the roofs,
Over the festive town
Flying higher and higher
Living lights fountain!
All happily run,
Into the street
Shouting "Hooray!"

In honor of our Homeland,
In honor of our soldiers.
