Unknown Soldiers

War! What a terrible word!

How much pain and suffering

It brings into the world...

But we must know about it everything!

Unknown Soldiers are under the ground,

They gave all their lives

For people to live in the peaceful word around,

They gave their lives for children and wives.

They all had the names

Which were given to them at birth,

They had in life the only oath,

And Motherland they had as well.

"Let you remember me, my son,

Let you call my name

To remember for everybody living under the sun

How we fought not for our fame."

We've found those Soldiers

And returned them their names.

The Soldiers go along their roadways,

We mustn't have unknown Soldiers.
